

Blacksmith Lloyd Heller cuts a slice of beef for a visitor.

Leslie Fleanor, the 1965-66 Miss Missouri, tries her hand at driving nails.

When folks in the southern Ozark lakes region of Missouri start looking for roots and herbs to make their home remedies, that means spring is in the air.

Down past Springfield 40 miles, by U. S. Route 65, Silver Dollar City spends two weekends celebrating this time of year with their annual Root Digging Days.

The small frontier-style village, sitting in Marvel Cave Park, is a reconstruction of a pioneer settlement, complete with general store, mill, blacksmith shop, log church and newspaper printing office.

The festivities, to be held this year on April 27-28 and May 4-5, have brought in some 12,000 visitors, on a single day, to join the fun and participate in the events scheduled.

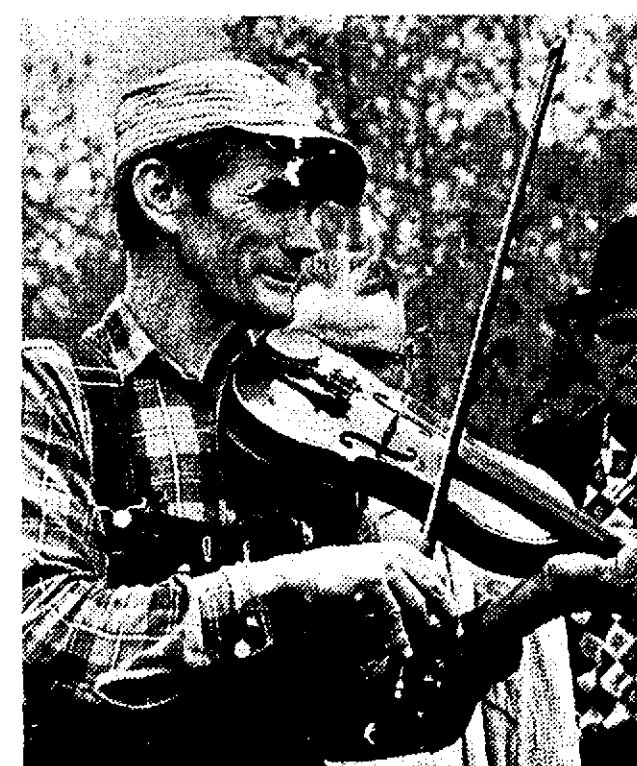

There is accuracy firing with muzzle-loaded Civil War cannons; fire-hose line laying (the winners getting to spray the losers); straw-bale mazes; rides on donkeys and stagecoaches; a tug of war between youngsters and an old steam engine while, through it all, wandering music-makers entertain.

For everyone there is the "world's biggest dinner," coming from whole steers cooked on the grounds over barbecue fires and sold at the 1880 price of 46¢ a serving. Pink lemonade, hand-churned ice cream and free sassafras tea are available at fancy-trimmed booths along the main street.

It's a short walk over the 180-foot long swinging bridge to join the celebration, but when over it'll be a long time before one forgets the fun had at Root Digging Days.

SHAPELY FIRST for the Iron Curtain countries was the entry of Daliborka Stojic, 23, in the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant. Miss Stojic will represent Yugoslavia in the contest. The University of Belgrade student is 5-foot-6, weighs 118 pounds and measures 36-23-36.

Clawed Wings

Hoatzins, strange birds of South America, are hatched with claws on their wings. The birds use the claws as extra legs to climb through tangled underbrush.

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

Advertising at Work: Survey of 4,000 teens shows that ads and TV commercials against smoking are bringing results. November and December, 1967, and January, 1968, show significant drop in cigarette consumption. Ten years ago 34 per cent of 17-year-old boys and 25 per cent of 17-year-old girls smoked. In new survey 25 per cent of boys and 15 per cent of girls smoked. Results are startling because they reflect first decline ever detected. U.S. Public Health Service hopeful that the study really denotes a trend. The "awareness factor" regarding health was the key reason given. Ninety-one per cent of teens surveyed agreed that cigarettes are harmful.

NOT SO BAD MAYBE: Dr. Albert Hess, expert on juvenile delinquency, is suspicious of FBI and other statistics relating to juvenile crime. Points out that figures have been kept for only 10 years. Part of increase due to improved crime reporting and better police work. Also, the disturbing American habit of sending more and more teens into juvenile courts and thereby into the statistics. Dr. Hess has written a handbook for juvenile judges called "The American Juvenile Court." He wants truancy, curfew-breaking and smoking to be handled by family, schools or some other nonofficial legal body. He favors juveniles having the same rights as adults in courts. Recent Supreme Court decision provides for this measure of equality. Hear, here, hear!

SAD FACT: Thirty-nine per cent of the cities queried in a recent survey estimate crime has grown from 15 per cent to 30 per cent; 22 per cent of the towns say the same. They were found to have underestimated the truth to a great degree. Oddly enough, crime is highest in suburbs, not urban areas.

Fashion: The new curlye Shirley Temple hairdo must be a child of the permanent people—too many seasons went by while ultrastraight hair won the day. No need for haircuts, hairdressers or perms. Didn't the pro hair hunters squim? Yes! Curly curls, curls necessitate special cuts, sets and permanents. Who said fashion isn't a racket? But, will teens succumb to fresher pressure or retain the natural look they love?

CRASH BANG: Motorcycle accidents on the rise. Have increased 127 per cent in Los Angeles County in last five years. Slightly less nationwide. Present trend indicates registration of 200,000 motorcycles in Los Angeles County by 1970. Authorities are calling for stricter licensing, driver education in high schools and rules requiring protective helmets, goggles and boots. Accident rate is twice the average, and injury rate is four times greater than all other vehicles.

THE BIG PUSH: One cop-out pot pushers use is that marijuana does not lead to use of stronger drugs—physiologically, this may be true. Doubtless, the majority of "enlightened" teen pot users have no intention of going on to heroin or cocaine. Unfortunately, these "idealistic" teens are extremely naive. The "bad guys" of this world aren't content with cheap marijuana trade. Those who traffic in dope often "sponsor" pot parties where harder stuff just "happens" to be pushed out free. Get the picture? Too many teens don't until it's too late.

Run Run Runaway: There are 15,000 runaways reported annually in the city and county of Los Angeles. The age is from 11 to 17! Sadly, the girls outnumber the boys. Where do they go? In Los Angeles, anyway, not much farther than Sunset Strip. Once they get there the picture darkens. Many of the kids find everything free—food, sex, marijuana—none of it good quality.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!
This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.
Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

ARE ALL PEOPLE UNCARING?
Dear Helen: I read in our paper where a two-year-old boy was beaten to death by his father. What made me just plain sick at my stomach, though, was that down in the last paragraph it said the police said they had witnesses: A couple setting in a car outside had watched this awful thing through the window for 20 minutes.

How can people say they're humans and yet watch a baby being killed and not try to stop it? Instead of jailing this couple for not trying to prevent a crime, the police just seem grateful that they will help identify the killer. Almost every day you hear about something like this. Doesn't anyone care any more? —CONCERNED TEEN
Dear Helen: I can't believe any sane person would sit and watch a child being beaten to death without making an effort to help. If you'd check the facts, you might find something has been omitted, or perhaps you jumped to the wrong conclusions.
It's true, there are people who just don't care, but for every "uninvolved" coward, hundreds DO go all out to assist their fellowman. If you don't believe me, think back to the time your car stalled on the highway. You didn't wait long for help, I'll bet.

Trouble is, kind people don't make the headlines. You can be sure the uncaring ones are in the minority, or THEY wouldn't make headlines either, if "un-involvement" were the accepted thing, it would no longer be shocking enough to hit the news. —H

Dear Helen: Here's a little different description of a boy friend.

THIS IS HIM!
What is a boyfriend? He is the doorbell ringing at a quarter to nine when you said eight. He is the show you've seen three times, and the ice cream soda you can't finish. He is your excuse for being late, and the sloppy kiss that makes you forget it all.

He is the telephone call in the midst of a family feud, and the only one to remember your mother's birthday.

On your free afternoon, he's the boy next door — with the girl down the block. When you need him fast, he's on the other side of town. Then, he's the car that won't start after three hours of tinkering, and the long bus ride home.

On your birthday, he's the only ten-cent card in the mail — three days late, and the soft smile as if to say, "I'm sorry" the next day.

He's the fight three days before the Junior Prom, and the beautiful corsage on Prom Night. He's your anger when he says he has to take his cousin to the next dance — and you find out how pretty she is.

He's the best swimmer in your crowd, but he's the one on the beach with a girl in a bikini. On a cool summer night, he's that almost perfect ride in the country until you run out of gas.

But most of all, he's the quickened pace of your heart, and the love in your eyes when you know he's near you. —CAR-RIE GUERRA, Union City, N.J.

Thanks, Carrie. Your piece is a fine addition to our "What is a Boyfriend?" "What is a Girl-friend?" series. —H

A safety play is an insurance policy to protect a contract. It is most important in rubber bridge where overtricks mean little but also has its place in match point duplicate.

In the recent Metropolitan championships, Carol Leib and Jane Kerr won the women's pairs. One of their good scores came when Carol wisely decided to take out an insurance policy on a four spade contract.

East put the ace of diamonds on her partner's queen and Carol dropped the king. This type play is almost automatic with any good player irrespective of the possible need to establish an extra entry to dummy.

East returned the nine of diamonds and Carol let dummy's 10 win the trick. Then she went into a lot of study before leading the ace of clubs and discarding her jack of diamonds. This was her insurance policy. It made it impossible for her to make an overtrick, but nevertheless made it impossible for her to lose her contract.

Her next play was a low trump. East jumped up with the ace and led another diamond. Carol ruffed high, drew trumps stopping in dummy and discarded two of her three low hearts on the last two high clubs.

It should be noted that the safety play would have been equally effective had West held the ace of spades. East would have been able to trump a heart, but the heart East trumped would have been the small one that Carol lost anyway.

It should also be noted that if East had ducked the first diamond, Carol would have had to go down one trick and that a heart plus further correct defense would also have beaten her, but no one who wants to win waits for sure thing contracts.

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
2 ♠	1 ♠	Dbic	Rdbic

You, South, hold:
♠ K 8 7 ♥ K J 3 ♦ K 8 6 5 4 ♣ 3 2

What do you do now?
A—Guess to the best of your ability. We wouldn't criticize a pass, a three spade bid or a double with our slight preference for a pass.

Again East doubles your partner's spade opening. This time you hold:

and on the Quang Tri airfield. Casualties were reported light from the shelling of Camp Carroll and no material damage was reported. A fuel storage area was hit in the 40-minute attack on the airfield and light casualties were reported.

The American B52s made three more raids northeast of Saigon to follow up a series of four raids on targets from 24 to 35 miles northwest of Saigon. Tons of explosives were dropped on bunkers, base camps, troop concentrations and weapons positions.

Other B52s maintained the relentless attack on the A Shau Valley and the area east of the North Vietnamese valley stronghold with three more raids.

The air war over North Vietnam Friday cost the Air Force an F4 Phantom downed from unknown causes. The two crewmen were reported missing. It was the 828th announced American warplane lost in the more than three-year bombing campaign over North Vietnam.

Pilots said enemy ground fire was light to moderate and reported surface-to-air missiles around Vinh. Lingering monsoons limited American bombers to 96 missions over North Vietnam Friday in the curtailed air war.

America's newest fighter-bomber, the F111, returned to action Friday for the first time since Monday night's crash of a third F111.

among others, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary-designate Wilbur J. Cohen of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and Sens. Fred R. Harris and A.S. Mike Monroney, both of Oklahoma, Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, Alan Bible of Nevada, Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii and Frank E. Moss of Utah.

Harris and Mondale are Humphrey's campaign managers as co-chairmen of United Democrats for Humphrey, whose honorary chairman is former President Harry S. Truman.

Humphrey, who will be 57 on May 27, is older than Kennedy, McCarthy and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the only announced major GOP presidential candidate.

But Harris and Mondale are putting the accent on youth in building the United Democrats for Humphrey organization.

Humphrey's campaign theme of national unity will call upon his rivals to make clear they will support the party nominee if they are defeated on the road to the nomination.

He has said he will take the record of the Johnson-Humphrey administration to "every corner of the land." And he has vowed not to retreat from that record.

Humphrey has said there is a great need for national unity, contending all Americans "must put our differences behind us."

He has called for "a permanent moratorium on the inflammatory demagoguery which pits men against each other—for a moratorium on the vocabulary of violence."

Humphrey's announcement comes on the 1,193rd day of his vice presidency, a post he was elected to in 1964 following 16 years in the Senate.

He was twice elected mayor of Minneapolis after helping form the Democrat-Farmer Labor Party in Minnesota, a coalition that also brought Orville Freeman the governorship—and Eugene J. McCarthy a Senate seat.

Mrs. Eliza Foster, age 95, wife of the late L. A. Foster, died early today in a local hospital.

Mrs. Foster was a lifelong resident of Hope and Hempstead County. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by two sons: Vincent Foster and L. A. Foster, both of Hope; two daughters: Mrs. Charlie Wilson, and Mrs. Dick Watkins, both of Hope; eight grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete and will be announced later today by Oakcrest Funeral Home.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It could be a bad year for duck hunters. As most waterfowlers know, the majority of ducks that traverse the North American flyways nest in the Canadian provinces. Severe drought in those areas in recent years has seriously curtailed "brood water"—the term used by biologists to describe the water Mamma Duck wants for her offspring to paddle around in.

Ken McCreary, of Ducks Unlimited's Chicago headquarters, says, "A comparatively mild, 'open' winter with little snow across Canada's prairie region, coupled with less than normal rainfall since last summer, has left waterfowl nesting season in precarious situation."

There is one direct-action program in which the individual can take a personal part. The male wood duck is one of nature's incomparable sights. His only real rival in the web-footed league is the Chinese Mandarin duck—not a native of this hemisphere. Just as amazing (if somewhat dowdier in plumage) is the female wood duck.

Once these beautiful creatures were seriously endangered, and from 1918 to 1941 all hunting was prohibited. In recent years the woodie has made a strong comeback, but his survival still depends on man's magnanimity.

In desperation, the female woodie will nest on the ground, but she much prefers to nest in hollow trees. The trouble is, much of the old hardwood forests that once covered America's bottomlands is gone. And there seems to be a paucity of deserted pileated woodpecker nests that the wood ducks can rehabilitate.

Old trees can't be replaced, but reasonable substitutes can be manufactured out of scrap lumber with little effort.

Wood duck nesting boxes should be about 10 inches square inside and about two feet high. A four-inch entry hole should be cut near the top, with a small drainage hole drilled in the bottom. A couple of inches of wood shavings will suffice for nesting material.

Wood ducklings come into the world with two natural tools to help them survive—strong claws and a sharp hook on the beak. These are essential, because as soon as they hatch they leave the nest for good and climbing up out of a hollow is no mean feat.

You can assist the ducklings by canting the front board slightly forward, and creating a few foot (or beak) holds on the inside.

These boxes should be placed on poles over water, or about 15 feet up in a tree—not more than 200 feet from the water.

Any farm pond bordered by trees or even a small woodland stream can support a family or two of woodies—providing that nesting sites are available.

SOLUNAR TABLES

By RICHARD ALDEN KNIGHT

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Richard Alden Knight's SOLUNAR TABLES. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory; or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Jerry Quarry
Strong heavyweight, like the Rock

Marciano Compares Quarry, Frazier to His Rough Ring Style

By AL CARTWRIGHT
NEA Special Writer

WILMINGTON, Del. — (NEA)—Rocky Marciano looked good.

He no longer was the compact, hard, never-beaten destroyer of the ring, but he had melted down from the balloon you used to see in the pre-fight introductions on television a few years ago. He wore a crimson jacket over a beige turtleneck and his counterfeited locks were carefully tousled. He was tan from the Fort Lauderdale sun.

A fellow paisano was showing him off around his cafe. Hands hakes were on the house. Marciano retreated to a seat at the unmanned piano bar and had himself a red wine.

"I'm a poor example of a fight fan," Rocky said. "I guess I saw enough of it—sort of like having too much candy. I only go see the hot items like Frazier. Quarry. I used to love watching Willie Pep, but I don't go for the little guys any more."

"I caught Joe Frazier's act against Buster Mathis in the Garden. I had heard so much read so much about him that I was a little disappointed in his showing. Mathis made him look bad in a couple of spots. And Frazier isn't the strongest heavyweight we've ever had. Mathis pushed him away from clinches.

"That's how you tell the strong ones—see who moves who in the clinches. It's like two football linemen going at each other, and all of a sudden one is moving the other back. Rex Layne was the only man I fought who pushed me back, and I was considered strong. All heavies aren't necessarily strong. Patterson wasn't. Clay neither. Ellis isn't. Quarry seems to be. Liston was. So was Johannson."

It was suggested that maybe this fight hadn't been a fair evaluation of Frazier's strength, considering Mathis' weight advantage. Marciano agreed, but he didn't sound convinced.

They have pinned a Marciano label on the similarly constructed and destructive Frazier, and the old champ concurs. "This strategy reminds me of mine. In fact, I was almost fighting Mathis with him. I liked to put my chin on the other guy's right shoulder and punch away inside. Joe does this, too; gives you three, four shots to the body, comes up with the left hook. He is naturally aggressive."

Marciano said he never had given any thought to how he would have combated someone with his own style "because there weren't too many of me around. I had a little Galento in me—not dirty like Tony, but rough. I only needed a little room to punch. Charley Goldman, my little trainer, taught me that. He'd have me practice uppercuts that would just miss my own nose, when I shadow-boxed. That's how I knocked out Louis—a tight left uppercut right up the middle."

Rocky had a sudden thought, and smiled. "Near the end—after 48 fights, mind you—I developed a bit of a jab. It showed up in the Moore fight, and he had a much longer reach. Everybody figured Archie would outbox me if the fight went 15, but when I knocked him out in the ninth I was ahead on points."

On all counts. It was his last fight.

Ryan—'Almost Unhittable'

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK, N.Y. — (NEA)—Phil Linz didn't realize how brave he was when he volunteered to catch batting practice the opening week of the season.

The New York Mets were in San Francisco, and on the mound stood a tall, slightly bowlegged righthander. His name was Lynn Nolan Ryan.

Linz, who's a spare infielder when he doesn't play the harmonica, motioned for Nolan, as the Mets called him, to flip a few warmup tosses. The motion was easy and fluid. The ball looked normal in release, on a belt-high line to the plate. Phil, crouching, put the catcher's glove in front of his face. The ball abruptly veered up and to the right, a foot over his head, and thudded into the netting.

Phil quickly adjusted his glasses. Nolan threw again. Same hop, same bewildered look on Linz' face as he missed the throw. Altogether, the phenomenon was repeated five times.

"I've heard of a pitcher throwing the ball by a hitter," said a writer to whom Phil related the experience, "—but never by a catcher."

A Ryan cult, embellished by such lore, has already pervaded the National League in this young season, though he started it with a total pitching experience of three innings in the major leagues.

"He's the fastest I've ever seen," said Red Schoendienst, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals. "Period."

"I haven't seen anybody like him since Bob Feller," said Ralph Kiner, who hit 369 homers in the major leagues and now broadcasts the Mets' games.

"I just keep hoping," nodded Ron Swoboda, who sometimes has to face him in batting practice, "he'll throw curves. He's virtually unhittable."

Jerry Grote, who has to catch him in regulation games, said Ryan throws a ball that "just keeps getting smaller and smaller." "Then CHUNG," said Jerry, "it's right on top of you and you better hope the mitt's in the right place. He's faster than (Sandy) Koufax, or anyone now pitching in the league. Maybe Bob Gibson (Cardinals) is closest. He's got twice the speed of Juan Marichal."

"And," added Swoboda, "he throws strikes."

Enough for the testimonials. Let's try to make him human. Because outside of Alvin, Tex., and a few bookkeepers in the $11,500 in federal income taxes, giving him a take-home pay of $68,500. On his $125,000 Mays paid a federal income tax of $73,000, leaving $52,000 in take-home pay. In addition, consumer prices today are about 2.2 times as high as they were in 1931. At today's prices, Mays' $52,000 take-home will buy what $23,600 would have bought in 1931. In terms of purchasing power, Mays' salary was worth only about a third of Ruth's.

"If Willie Mays were to receive as much purchasing power today as Babe Ruth did in 1931, he would have to be paid $454,000. (This would be reduced by income taxes —of $303,000—to a take-home pay of $150,700, which at current prices is what it would take to buy what Babe Ruth could purchase with $68,500 in 1931.)"

Ritter predicted that by the year 2000, consumer prices will be exactly double what they are today.

"At those prices, and assuming present tax rates," he said, "if Willie Mays were to earn as much purchasing power in the year 2000 as Babe Ruth earned in 1931, he would have to be paid a salary of $956,300. Not very likely, everything considered, for a 69-year-old centerfielder."

In an interview, Ritter was asked what he would do if he were Willie Mays' financial adviser. Would he ask for more money from the Giants?

"I would tell Willie," said Ritter, "that he should be thankful he's getting $125,000. Not every 263 hitter earns that kind of money."

On all counts. It was his last fight.

Is Mays Earning Pauper's Salary?

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Compared to Babe Ruth, Willie Mays is practically working for peanuts. It's true that Mays' yearly salary with the San Francisco Giants is $125,000, and that Babe Ruth only received as much as $80,000, in 1931, with the New York Yankees.

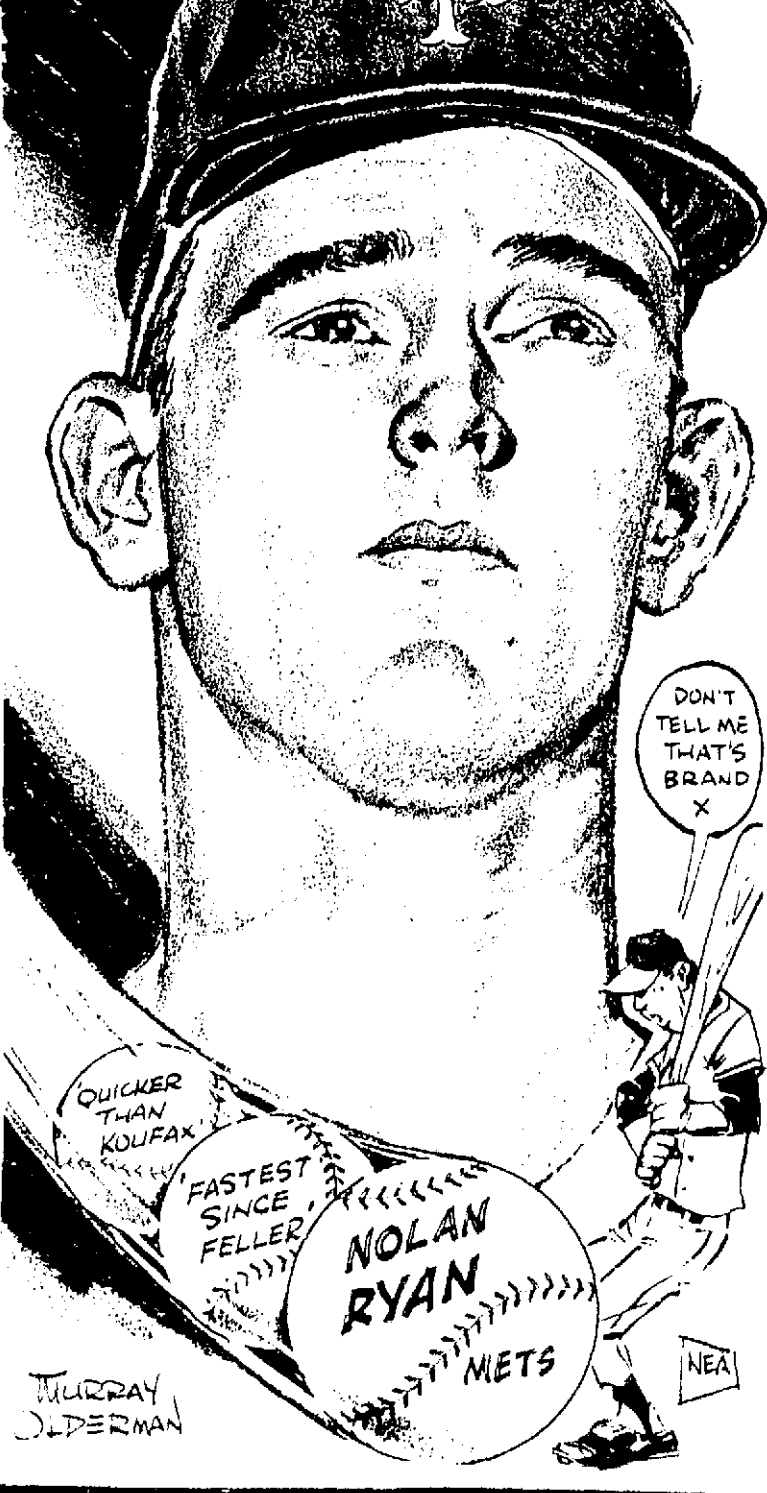

But the difference in federal income tax payments and inflationary rise of consumer prices would have allowed Ruth to buy Mays several times over.

Dr. Lawrence S. Ritter, chairman of the department of finance at New York University's Graduate School of Business and author of the baseball book, "The Glory of Their Times," has written about this financial distinction.

In an article entitled, "Inflation: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," Ritter wrote: "On his $80,000, Ruth paid

Remember When Most Miniskirts Were Worn by Girls Under Age 5?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Your harvest of memories is pretty bountiful if you can look back and remember when—

If a person hadn't met you for quite a time, he'd exclaim, "Why, I haven't seen you since Hector was a pup!"

Most miniskirts were worn by girls under five years of age.

Mothers hated to see a son go to college for fear he might learn bad habits there, such as drinking beer.

It was widely believed, even by some sociologists, that you could tell a criminal type by the lobes of his ears.

Horse cars were a popular form of public transportation, and each horse car in its trip across town was followed by a flock of hopeful English sparrows.

Women tended to faint in any emergency, not because their nerves were weak but because their corsets were so tight. They often carried smelling salts in their pocketbooks so they could be revived quickly.

Every well brought up little girl was expected to learn to play the piano, and every little boy the violin or saxophone.

Away back in 1922, in the depths of prohibition, auto magazine Henry Ford announced that any worker showing up with liquor on his breath would be fired. Bread that year sold for five cents a loaf.

Wrist watches, one regarded as sissified by most men, became so popular as the result of their use by officers in the first World War that the traditional pocket watch was doomed. But clothiers, slow to change, still put a watch pocket in most men's suit pants.

In 1924 Americans started dusting off their dictionaries as a new cultural fad swept the nation—crossword puzzles.

A small lad who put on a pair of long black stockings in the morning usually had a hole in one knee by night fall from playing marbles.

People would stay up until midnight trying to get an out of town station on their scratchy crystal radio sets.

Some silent film critics say no real future for talking pictures, because they felt the public wouldn't take to being jabbered at from the screen.

The only men who dried the kitchen dishes were bachelors. The average married man felt such a task was beneath his dignity and, besides, his wife didn't usually want him in the kitchen. That was her realm.

Almost every child's ambition was to sneak a peak into the little black bag carried by the doctor and see how many tiny infants were in it. That's where babies came from—unless you were still gullible enough to believe the stork brought them.

In disparaging a neighboring town smaller than the one in which you lived, you said, "It's so dull there they roll up the sidewalks every night at 9 o'clock."

Many people led long, useful and happy lives without ever having to fill out a government form.

Frozen Food Code Adopted for Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Board of Health has eliminated the major objections of the frozen food industry to a code regulating the industry in Arkansas.

The board adopted the code Wednesday at Hot Springs.

Dr. J. T. Herron, state health officer, said Thursday that the regulations dealing with the manufacturing process eliminated most of the references to plant design and specifications for equipment — industry's major objections.

The board first began developing regulations two years ago but they were not put into effect immediately because of resistance from the frozen food industry.

The time permitted for the frozen food companies to comply with the regulations was altered and the temperature requirements for frozen products were eased under the revised regulations.

Miss Henderson Is Selected

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — Miss Linda Haney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Haney of El Dorado, was selected Thursday night Miss Henderson State College.

Miss Haney, a 19-year-old junior, stands 5-foot-3, weighs 105 pounds and has black hair and blue eyes. Her statistics are 35-24-34.

Miss Jean Keese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Keese, of Mulvorn was runner up.

Faubus Says He Won't Be Candidate

By JOHN R. STARK
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus said today that the effort to unseat Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller "must be left to some other Democratic leader at this particular time."

Faubus made the remark in a letter mailed to Little Rock from his western "hideaway." He said he wrote the letter because he wanted to end rumors that he would return to Arkansas and file for governor before the deadline May 1.

Faubus ended a four-day visit to Arkansas 10 days ago and he left behind speculation that he was reconsidering his decision not to seek office this year. He has said he is writing a book in some undisclosed place west of Arkansas.

Rumors about his candidacy were communicated to him, Faubus said, by Francis Murray, editor of the Madison County Record. Faubus has kept contact with Arkansas through Murray during his absence.

"He (Murray) also informed me of various people who have my filing fee ready for me," Faubus said.

He said his original decision not to seek office this year was based on personal reasons and that these reasons remained much the same.

"Also my late entry as a candidate in the Democratic primaries would not be fair to those Democratic leaders who, based on my previous negative announcement, have considered this matter and decided to become candidates," Faubus wrote.

"That is, such late entry would not be fair without prior consultation with such candidates and their friends, and no such consultations have been held."

Faubus said he felt he would have an excellent chance to win the Democratic nomination and "unseat the WR organization."

"The WR organization's principal asset, and almost the only one, is based on $500 million," he said. "I also distinguish between the WR organization and an organization of good Republicans."

Faubus, who has always couched his political announcements in language subject to interpretations, then said:

"The need to remove the WR group from state office before the state government suffers irreparable harm, and my desire to help to do so as a candidate becomes immaterial. The effort must be left to some other Democratic leader at this particular time."

The Faubus letter was mailed from Little Rock.

Privilege of Voting Can't Be Appreciated Until It Is Lost

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

What is the best way to demonstrate the old-fashioned pride we have in being American citizens? By exercising our right to vote. Voting is, in reality, more than a right. It's a privilege.

This is called to our attention as May 1, Law Day, U.S.A., draws near and we recall a startling headline which appeared in a B&PW Club national magazine. It stated, "Nobody Votes in My Town."

We have heard of "light votes," but in the U.S.A. how could such a thing as that happen? NOBODY voting? Then, it became apparent, for the author was an inmate at Southern Michigan Prison, and in such "towns" nobody is allowed to vote.

Inmate 87776 knows all too well the truth of the words "the privilege of voting can't completely be appreciated until it is lost." But for most Americans the right to vote is still ours if we but choose to exercise it.

The only way the citizens of this great country should "take the law into their own hands" is by voting. It is our greatest weapon against the three C's—Crime, Corruption, and Communism. As in the case of any weapon, though, it must be handled with care. Become informed on issues and candidates before you vote for or against them.

Immigrant once said, "Americans can't adequately appreciate their system of government because they don't understand what it ain't." We seem to be striving to find out what "the other way" is with every passing day.

As another presidential election day approaches, probably never before was so much at stake in America. Before you assume we are being overly dramatic, read the headlines in this very newspaper.

The prisoner from Southern Michigan concluded his remarks in this way: "Our Star Spangled Banner waves best when every thread is intact. Similarly, the government it represents needs every vote."

"Nobody votes in my town. Nobody may."

"What could be worse, patriotically?"

"—Your town, where every adult may vote . . . and you don't."

Defense Work Law Is Not Enforced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover charges that some corporations have refused, or delayed accepting, contracts to produce less rigidly controlled civilian work.

And, he said, the law which would force the companies to take defense work is not properly enforced.

Rickover made the charges in a closed session of the House Banking and Currency Committee on April 11. The committee voted this week to make the testimony public but it still has not been officially released.

"It has become increasingly difficult to get industry to accept and perform orders for military equipment in a timely and economical manner," Rickover testified.

He said he has had, at times, to place orders for equipment as long as four years before it is needed because "industry would much prefer to do civilian work because they do not have to expend as much design and engineering effort on the commercial work."

Rickover is the Navy's deputy commander for nuclear propulsion of the Naval Ship Systems Command and director of the Division of Naval Reactors for the Atomic Energy Commission.

He told the committee that four times during March 1967, General Electric refused to bid on a contract for propulsion plant equipment for a new submarine considered to be an "urgent military requirement."

The Navy had determined, Rickover said, that GE was the only company which could handle the job, but GE said it did not at that time have enough engineers to do the work.

U.S. Bombers Hit Viet Cong Sanctuaries

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force B52 bombers attacked Viet Cong sanctuaries on two sides of Saigon today in a new effort to smash enemy troop concentrations within striking distance of the capital.

Intelligence reports persisted that the Viet Cong are planning an attack on Saigon similar to the invasion of the city during the lunar new year offensive Jan. 31.

Despite the reports, only small-scale skirmishes were reported on the outskirts of the capital.

The biggest fight was just below the demilitarized zone near Con Thien where U.S. Marines supported by tanks and artillery killed 72 North Vietnamese troops in a three-hour battle.

Marine losses were listed as nine killed and 17 wounded in the fight that broke out Friday when a squad from the 4th Regiment ran into a North Vietnamese force of unknown size. Two platoons of Leatherneck reinforcements and tanks were thrown into the battle.

Enemy gunners made artillery, rocket and mortar attacks Friday on Camp Carroll, a U.S. artillery base east of Khe Sanh.

Nationwide Protest Is Scheduled

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam says students on campuses from coast to coast will participate today in a one-day strike against war and racism.

Linda Morse, executive secretary of the committee, predicted Thursday that some schools would be completely closed. At others, she said, there would be teach-ins, rallies, picketing and antiwar skills.

In addition to student boycotts of classes, numerous college teachers have canceled classes in advance. Seminars on the Vietnam war, the draft and race problems were planned.

The committee sought to synchronize the strike by U.S. students with classroom stoppages planned in Europe, Latin America, Asia and Africa.

Today's demonstrations are part of the week of antiwar activities that will come to a climax Saturday with demonstrations planned in a score of American cities. An antiwar rally is planned in New York's Central Park, preceded by two parades to the park.

Kipp Dawson, national coordinator for the Student Mobilization Committee, said its leaders do not think that today's student demonstrations will interfere with President Johnson's efforts to get peace negotiations going with Hanoi.

The National Black Anti-Draft Union, a Negro organization, is sponsoring the strike along with the Student Mobilization Committee.

Several hundred students and faculty members jammed the gun at one of the campuses of the State University of New York.

Humphrey to Announce Today

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, with some backing from business, labor, the South—and perhaps President Johnson—is launching his second quest for the Democratic presidential nomination issuing a call for national unity.

His announcement of candidacy, due today at a luncheon for 1,000 supporters at a Washington hotel, puts him against Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, his fellow Minnesotan.

Although any heir-apparent status for Humphrey is vague at this point, professional politicians are firm in the belief Johnson prefers Humphrey as his successor.

The President announced March 31 he will not run again, but made clear in remarks Thursday night he will not be a bystander in the campaign.

And Johnson's promise to vigorously oppose "any would-be divisive force" in the nation was widely interpreted as directed primarily at Kennedy and McCarthy, critics of the way he has handled the Vietnam war and other problems.

This and the chief executive's pledge to work for continuance of his domestic programs pointed strongly to Humphrey, the indefatigable defender of Johnson policies at home and in Vietnam.

It remains undisclosed just how and when Johnson would help his loyal vice president pick up support for the Democratic convention in August at Chicago while Kennedy and McCarthy harvest the publicity and the votes from presidential primaries he is not entering.

But Humphrey, 56, is regarded as a strong prospect to win the nomination, a prize he saw vanish in 1960 after suffering primary defeats at the hands of John F. Kennedy.

Organized labor and business leaders are giving him help—business principally because some of its leaders have an ingrained fear of Kennedy, who gave the steel industry a rough time as attorney general when President Kennedy forced a steel-price rollback.

And Humphrey enters the campaign with strong support of regular Democrats in the South who had expected to back Johnson for renomination until the President bowed out.

Govs. John J. McKeithen of Louisiana, Buford Ellington of Tennessee, John B. Connally of Texas and Mills E. Godwin of Virginia all have had kind words for Humphrey.

Ironically, Humphrey was once regarded as no friend of the South after his successful fight to win adoption of a civil rights plan at the 1948 Democratic National Convention. That fight first put him in the national political spotlight.

The vice president hopes for the backing of the politically powerful Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who controls the hefty Illinois delegation; and of Gov. Richard H. Hughes, who heads the sizable New Jersey convention contingent.

Humphrey has a base in Minnesota, where his organization claims the convention delegation will be at least 46 for Humphrey to 16 for McCarthy.

Humphrey has support in delegations already chosen in Alaska and Nevada, and may get most of the delegates from Connecticut.
